

Contents

Note on Contributors	07
Editorial Note	09
Mustafa Feiruz
The Role of Famine in Piracy off the Somali Coast: A Study on the Drought and Famine of 2011	11
Enrico Putignano
Weak Rule of Law, Political Instability and Violence in the Greater Horn of Africa: What Role on the Economic Development?	42
Ayub A. Dahir
Economic Relations Between Türkiye and Somalia: Prospects and Challenges	64
Abdulkarim Yusuf Abdulle
Notes on the Freedom of Assembly and Demonstration in the Constitutions of Somalia, Ethiopia and Uganda	87
Mahad Adam Botan
Channelling East African Poetic Futures Through Diasporic Experiences	106
Godfrey Ikahu Kariuki & Lynda Ouma
Dareerinta Ereyada Weedha Af-Soomaaliga	132
Maxamed X. Xuseen Raabbi

Note on Contributors

Enrico Putignano holds a Masters in Politics and Policy Analysis from Bocconi University in Milan, Italy, and a Masters in Public Management and Policy from Fundação Getulio Vargas (FGV). He currently works for the International Fund for Agricultural Development in Rome, Italy. His interest lies in International Development, Political Economy and Global History. He is available at enrico.putignano@studbocconi.it.

Ayub A. Dahir is an independent Researcher in Economics & Finance with special interests in the areas of Financing Development, Governance, and Political Economy of the Development (with a focus on the Greater Horn of Africa). Master of Development Economics and Bachelor in Finance & Banking.

Abdulkarim Yusuf Abdulle, is a researcher at Beledwein University, Somalia; holds MA in Science of Strategy from Institute of Social Sciences at Gebze Technical University, Turkey. His current research interests include Somalia security; terrorism in Africa; and Turkish-Africa relations.

Mahad Adam Botan is a researcher based in Mogadishu; he holds master in business administration and higher diploma in law. He currently works for EUCAP-Somalia (European Union Capacity Building Mission in Somalia).

Godfrey Ikahu Kariuki holds Masters of Arts graduate from the University of Nairobi. His thesis masters project titled “(Re)construction of Images and Identities of the Self in Narriyah Waheed’s, Salt” 2019. He is a researcher in cultural studies, literary studies, poet, and short story writer. His focus is on post-colonial, feminism, Artivism, cultural and historical backgrounds, and the navigation of contemporary issues in literature.

Lynda Ouma holds a Master Degree in Literature from the University of Nairobi. Her master's thesis investigated the gendered representation of trauma as depicted in Warsan Shire's 2011 poetry collection "Teaching My Mother How to Give Birth".

Maxamed X. Xuseen Raabbi [Mohamed H. Hussein Rabbi] is a retired Professor of Linguistics and Language Teaching in the Somali National University in Mogadishu, King Saud University in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. He authored and published number of books, including "Somali Descriptive Grammar: Morphology (Vol. I), 1994"; "Somali Descriptive Grammar: Syntax (Vol. II), 2014"; "Somali Descriptive Grammar: Phonology (Vol. III), 2014"; "New Somali Grammar, 1995"; and "A Program for Learning Somali: Teachers' and Students' Books, 2011". He also participated in several workshops and conference, and published a number of papers on Somali grammar. He is a member of several research institutions.